Edwin C. Sigel, Ltd. embarks on “Isis in a Box” program with Cyence International, Inc.

March 17, 2003

Edwin C. Sigel, Ltd. announced that its newest addition to its family of alliances would now come “In a Box”. Cyence International’s Isis lease origination software program will now be offered “In a Box” through a Strategic Alliance Agreement with Cyence International, Inc. This program will focus on the broker community and will combine the strength and versatility of the Isis program with the suite of outsourcing services offered by ECS.

The “In a Box” program will be offered exclusively to ECS clients looking to acquire the most comprehensive client server lease origination software on the market. Cyence International, with its Isis program, has been a valued key player in the front-end leasing software marketplace for over a decade. The program supports CRM, data capture, credit processing and lease documentation out of the box thus providing a cost-effective solution that gives even the smallest broker company the ability to succeed.

“We have teamed up with Cyence International to provide another cost-effective solution for our current and future clients,” says Shari L. Lipski, CLP, Marketing Manager of Edwin C. Sigel, Ltd. “Cyence International is a leader in the industry and we are honored to be designated as a preferred outsourcing service provider. We believe the program will prove invaluable to the broker community.”

“We have also contracted with Jon S. Haas, CLP of The Triad-Group, a commercial finance and equipment leasing industry consultant, to provide on-site training and customer service for our clients that choose the Isis in a Box Servicing Agreement,” says Shari Lipski. “Jon has been actively working with the Isis lease origination software program for over two years and has trained countless individuals on how to implement and customize Isis for their individual company needs.”

“ECS provides the marketplace with flexible, cost-efficient solutions to meet their accounting and lease portfolio management needs. Their efforts and services support our focus and make our product a compelling addition to any company,” said Peter Hyne, CEO, Cyence International. “All companies need a front-end software program that can deliver the type of power and ease of use that the Isis software package offers. However, cost has been a driving factor, and this new venture will put the Isis software program into many offices that couldn’t previously afford it.”

Cyence International is a leading business services provider to the global financial services community. Its U.S. office is currently located in St. Petersburg, Florida.
